Google Group: The Conservation Commission requires timely communication to function effectively. One example is to exchange notes of open space violations or observations witnessed in the field by Commissioners and our Conservation Agent staff person. Prompt communication of information can be done via assorted electronic methods. Electronic communications can contain pictures, video, audio and text. This posting shall serve as advance notice to the public on how to stay informed of and have access to such electronic communications. In taking a pro-active approach to support open government, the Commission tested successfully (started in 2004) and has actively used (since 2006) a service Google refers to as their “groups” service. The Conservation Commission has created an electronic “group” within which members may publish for viewing by other members, or the public, electronic communications by Commissioners. The virtual location for these publications is on the internet at: http://groups.google.com/group/sheltoncc. There is no registration required to view any communications published. They can be viewed on any device that connects to the internet and uses a browser. This includes computers, personal digital assistants and phones. Internet access is available privately from various providers via telephone lines, cable television lines, and wireless radio signals. If one does not have private access to the internet, it is available freely at all public libraries. This process also promotes access and knowledge to our activities by the disabled who perhaps find it difficult to attend our meetings physically.
